HUNTING FOR A BOOK.

"Never find anything in a book-stall in the 'sixpenny box.'" A greater mistake was never made. Some years ago a very able critic was stopped in the preparation of an article on a very interesting historical question for want of a certain pamphlet on the subject which, when published some twenty or thirty years before, had excited great attention. All the book-sellers had been canvassed without success. At last he advertised for it, naming as the price he was willing to give about as many shillings as it was worth pence. He had a copy within eight-and-forty hours, with a large "6d." penciled on the title page, showing that it had been picked out of one of these despised receptacles for curiosities of literature. Not find anything worth having in the "sixpenny box" at a book-stall! Pshaw! When the collected edition of Defoe's works was published, some thirty years ago, it was determined that the various pieces inserted in it should be reprinted from the editions of them superintended by Defoe himself. There was one tract which the editor had failed to find at the British Museum or any other public library, and which he had sought for in vain in "the Row," or any book-seller's within the reach of ordinary West End mortals. Somebody suggested that he should make a pilgrimage to Old street, St. Luke's, and perhaps Brown might have a copy. Old Brown, as he was familiarly called, had great knowledge of books and book rarities, although, perhaps, he was more widely known for the extensive stock of manuscript sermons, which he kept indexed according to texts, and which he was ready to lend or sell as his customers desired. I am afraid to say how many sermons on the text "Know yet not that there is a Prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?" he is reported to have sold on the death of the Duke of Wellington, and it is said he might have disposed of hundreds more if he had them in stock. But to go back to my story. The editor inquired of Brown whether he had a copy of Defoe's tract. "No," said Brown, "I have not, and I don't know where you are likely to find one. But if you do meet with one you will have to pay pretty handsomely for it." "I am prepared to pay a fair price for it," said the would-be customer. Now, old Brown had a "sixpenny box" outside the door, and he had such a keen eye to business that, I believe, if there was a box in London which would bear out Leigh Hunt's statement, it was that box in Old street. But, as the customer left the shop, his eye fell on the box, he turned over the rubbish in it, and at last selected a volume which he found there. "I'll pay you for this out of the box." "Thank you, sir," said Brown, taking the proffered 6d.; "but by the bye, what is it?" "It is a tract by Defoe," was the answer, to old Brown's chagrin. For it was the very work of which the purchaser was in search. Who, after this, will back Leigh Hunt's unfounded dogma that you will never find anything worth having in a "sixpenny box" at a book-stall.—The Nineteenth Century.

KIT CARSON'S GRAVE.

Says a letter to the Boston Herald: Taos, N. M., was the home of Kit Carson, and the house of the famous scout stands near the Plaza. Kit was once on his way home, and within a comparatively short distance of Taos. He had not seen his family, which he loved fondly, for three years. But he was overtaken with a request from the Government to bear some very important dispatches to the Pacific coast. So he turned about and started at once. It was four years before he returned to his family. We walked out to the little cemetery, standing in a most desolate spot amid the prosperous grain fields. Kit had requested to be buried beside his wife, and there were the graves of the two in a lot enclosed with a wooden picket fence, painted white and the pickets tipped with black. The grave mounds are two low, scrawny, gravel heaps. There are no tombstones, no inscriptions, nothing to tell who lies below, and it is not known which grave is filled by Kit Carson, or which by his wife. The famous frontiersman was a reckless gambler; he squandered away all his money and died penniless, but the public owes it to his memory that his grave should be properly marked and cared for.

WHAT AN ALBANY MAN SAID.

One of the lumber dealers in this State has for the past three years been supplying a dealer at Albany. For the first year everything went well, but at length the Albany man began to complain. He found shortage and culls in every car-load sent him, and demanded discounts therefor, and this spring it was impossible to please him. No matter how carefully lumber and shingles were culled and billed here, he was sure to write back that they were not up to the standard. Some time ago a load of "star" shingles were sent him. The "star" shingles beats anything made in the country, and they know it in Albany as well as Michigan, but as soon as the car arrived the dealer replied that he really must protest. The shingles were hardly "clear butts," and he could not unload the car until assured of a discount of twenty-five cents per thousand.

The Michigander had suffered long, but the end was nigh. He had inspected every bunch of shingles on that car, and he made up his mind to go to Albany and inspect them over again. The dealer there had never seen him, and the Wolverine walked into his office as a would-be purchaser of some extra fine shingles.

"I've got exactly what you want," promptly replied the Albanian. "I've got a car-load of Michigan "stars" out here which lay over any shingle you ever saw."

"Are they all perfect?"

"Every one of them."

"No culls in the centre of the bunches?"

"I'll eat every cull you find. I got them from a Michigander, who is as straight as the Ten Commandments, and he has never yet sent me a stick of second-class stuff. Come and see 'em."

The Wolverine quietly pulled out his business card and laid it on the desk.

The dealer took it up, read the name and sat down on a stool with a queer feeling in his knees.

There was an awful silence as they glared at each other, and it was a full minute before the victim slowly extended his hand and hoarsely whispered:

"Did you ever see a man make such an infernal ass of himself? Shake!"—Detroit Free Press.

AN ÆSTHETIC HERMIT.

The aged Herr Nahl, who died a short time ago, and whose valuable gallery of pictures is to be sold by auction in Cassel, was an eccentric and æsthetic hermit. For many years, a contemporary tells us, he inhabited two large rooms, the walls of which were covered with the costly ancestral paintings which he had inherited from his father and grandfather. He slept on a bed in the middle of one of these rooms, and never allowed himself the luxury of a stove, even in the coldest winter. According to his own story, he was never weary of studying his genuine Raphael and his accredited Rubens. The late King of Hanover was very anxious to obtain two or three of Nahl's famous pictures, and during a visit to Cassel he sent his chamberlain to the hermit with a really splendid offer for them. The owner at the time was so poor and wretched that he consented, with a great wrench, to part with one of the three, and received the money for it. He could not sleep for grief the whole of the following night, and early the next morning he appeared at the chamberlain's door, and said, with tears in his eyes:

"Herr Baron, I fret as if I had sold one of my children. I have had no peace since the deed was done The king must have the money again. I could not live if I missed one of my pictures from its place on the wall."

The king good-naturedly consented, and, anxious to relieve the old man, proposed that he should settle in Hanover and bring his pictures with him, promising him a pension as custos, with the understanding that he should bequeath the collection to the king on a payment of a stipulated sum. Nahl at first consented to this arrangement, but informed the king that he must continue to sleep in the midst of his pictures as long as he lived. This was a point, however, which the king would not concede. The old man returned to his penury at Cassel, overjoyed at his release. He died, as he had lived, surrounded by his beloved paintings.

VIPER MEN AND WOMEN.

Santa Fee New Mexican: At Guadalajara there exists an individual having a scaly skin exactly like that of a viper, even to the green color. He has, beside, viper habit of changing or shedding his skin every year. The skin comes off in a single piece, and not, as might be supposed, in parts. On the man's head there is not a single hair. A sister of this man, who died a short time ago, manifested the same phenomenon, and toward the close of her life began slowly to grow blind, owing to the viper's skin encroaching on the eyes to such an extent that she could only see through a narrow aperture at each eye. The same thing is now happening to the brother. He can scarcely see any object, and the head presents the repulsive aspects of a viper. In Cautia these unhappy beings have been known as the viper man and woman, and the phenomenon is attributed to the fact that their mother ate an excess of viper's meat to cure a disease of the blood. In Cuba it is a common practice for people to eat viper's meat as a remedy for blood diseases.

THE PLEASURE OF LIVING NEAR A VOLCANO.

We received yesterday morning alarming news from Hilo as to the advance of the lava. It is almost certain that one or more of the streams into which the flow has divided will push forward to the sea, doing great mischief. The flow which was nearest to the Waiakea plantation homestead broke out suddenly, while Mr. Kennedy and Charles Richardson were inspecting it one Sunday recently. A stream of lava, liquid as water, and glowing with a white heat, broke from the face of the flow and ran down a narrow and torturous gulch, nearly a mile in length, making such speed that the visitors had to make haste to avoid it. At the foot of the gulch is a hollow, which often fills up with water, making a lagoon. This is now being filled with lava and has checked the onward flow, which threatened the mill and other buildings at Waiakea in such a manner as to lead the manager to remove all portable stores, and to take measures to be in readiness to remove the plant itself to a place of safety. Toward the end of the week, however, the supply of lava seems to have slackened somewhat, and hopes were entertained that if the flat now being overflowed should be filled up the stream may pass forward to the sea without destroying the mill. There are two outlets for it. One of these is by a gulch a little more than half a mile on the Puna side of Hilo—by this route the lava would pass comparatively harmlessly to the sea by way of the course of the Waiolama stream. The other is a shallow gulch known as Kukuao, and lies nearer to Waiakea, and there is much reason to fear that if this channel is taken by the lava, it will quickly fill up the gulch and overflow the level ground, and destroy the plantation buildings. The fields of growing cane are not threatened, the lava being now past them and at a level considerably below them. Crushing is being carried on with the utmost vigor in order to get as much work as possible done beforehand in case of untoward results to the mill.

The natives have cleared out of their habitations in the neighborhood, and are also leaving Hilo. The town itself is not menaced by the flow just described, but there is another one which, if it breaks out in a similar manner, must overwhelm a large part of the town, its course being directly for the main street.—Honolulu Commercial Advertiser.

TRAFFIC IN FROGS.

In spite of the prejudice existing against the frogs, frog eating has now established itself firmly as an American institution. For a time it was confined to the Eastern States, but soon the hardy Westerner succumbed to the custom of effete Europe, and Chicago and San Francisco are as deeply in the mire as Boston or New York. At Elgin, Ill., there is a man who found it so profitable that he went into the business, a few years since, of raising a peculiar kind of frog for the Western markets. While in the East, in many cases, they are sold under fictitious names, it is said that in the West they are served up as fried frogs. A considerable improvement has taken place in this trade recently, and a dealer says there is a good demand for all that can be secured. Many restaurants and most of the hotels have the delicacy, though not on the regular bill of fare, only served to order. A large part of the frogs sold here are natives, but there is a serious competition on the part of the Canadian article. In Canada the business is conducted on a large scale, and the industry, which lately received considerable encouragement by the increased demand, is at present very promising. Numbers of boys, who have become very expert, spear the frogs in the country ponds and streams, and sell them in the city to the commission dealers, from whom they receive five to ten cents a dozen. The commission men skin, pack in ice, and ship them to the Northern and Western cities, where the delicious tidbits bring them a handsome profit. In New York city frogs are sold generally by the dozen, and bring from twenty to fifty cents, according to quality. As the demand increases, the business will furnish quite a source of rural income, and thrifty Cape Codders might consider this suggestion, as from personal observation it is known that vast number of frogs are there which now live to a respected, serene, and honored old age. The subject of canning frogs is now being talked of, and efforts are being made to discover a good process for this purpose. —Boston Commercial Bulletin.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—THE ONWARD MARCH OF TRUTH.—Why is it?—The great doctrine announced some fifty years back by Dr. Holloway, that the stomach, the liver and blood are the founts of disease, is now universally admitted, his greatest opponents having become his staunchest supporters. The reason is obvious; millions who were afflicted with Dyspepsia, liver complaints, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Debility and Physical Prostration, have been radically cured by a thorough course of his famous Pills, while others have been healed of scurvy, old sores, bad legs, scrofulous humors, glandular swellings, tumors, asthma, bronchitis, etc., by his Ointment and Pills, when all other means had failed. Such is the progress of truth and the triumph of reason.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.—None are genuine unless the signature of J. HAYDOCK surrounds each box of Pills and Ointment. Boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

The world is full of charlatans asking public attention to patent inventions for the mitigation of suffering. Everything claiming power to do good should be from a reputable source, otherwise it is open to suspicion. Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., affirms that his medicine, "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy," is the best article of its kind ever produced. Hence it is only just to the public that he refer to his record as a physician and surgeon. Among the capital operations performed by him are: Amputation of the thigh-bone in the case of Abraham Elsworth, Port Ewen, Ulster Co., N. Y.; amputation of the arm, case of Mrs. Edward Meyers, of Rondout, N. Y., and the operation of lithotomy (removal of stone from bladder), in the case of Simon Tietsell, of Kingston, and the removal of the eye for Oscar Craigg, of Rosendale, Ulster Co., N. Y. These are a few of many. All these persons fully recovered, because Dr. Kennedy prescribed "Favorite Remedy" (which has unequaled powers of purifying the Blood). Owing to the use of "Favorite Remedy" in the after-treatment of his surgical cases, not one has died; all are living to this day in the bloom of health. Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy," for sale by all druggists. $1.00 per bottle.
